

“Federal spending on wildfire suppression has ballooned from roughly $450 million per year in the 1990s to a record-setting $3.1 billion in 2018...But as the toll of wildfire increases, the federal government is supporting less research into the issue.”

**—
The Washington Post

We did this.

We can change it, vote.